SOLD
A gay teen's story of lies, sex and human trafficking
by David Taffet, Page 12
New Genvoya® is now available
One pill contains elvitegravir, cobicistat, emtricitabine, and tenofovir alafenamide (TAF).

Ask your healthcare provider if GENVOYA is right for you.

To learn more visit GENVOYA.com

Please see Brief Summary of Patient Information with important warnings on the following pages.
Brief Summary of Patient Information about GENVOYA

GENVOYA (evirlostat, cobicistat, emricitabine, and tenofovir alafenamide) tablets

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

There may be new information about GENVOYA. This information is only a summary and does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider about your medical condition or treatment.

What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?

GENVOYA can cause serious side effects, including:

- Build-up of lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis).

  Lactic acidosis may happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Lactic acidosis is a serious medical emergency that can lead to death. Lactic acidosis can be hard to identify early, because the symptoms could seem like symptoms of other health problems. Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms, which could be signs of lactic acidosis:

  - feel very weak or tired
  - have unusual (not normal) muscle pain
  - have trouble breathing
  - have stomach pain with nausea or vomiting
  - feel cold, especially in your arms and legs
  - feel dizzy or lightheaded
  - have a fast or irregular heartbeat

- Severe liver problems. Severe liver problems may happen in people who take GENVOYA. In some cases, these liver problems can lead to death. Your liver may become large and you may develop fat in your liver.

  Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms of liver problems:

  - your skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow (jaundice)
  - dark "tea-colored" urine
  - light-colored bowel movements (stools)
  - loss of appetite for several days or longer
  - nausea
  - stomach pain

- You may be more likely to get lactic acidosis or severe liver problems if you are female, very overweight (obese), or have been taking GENVOYA for a long time.

- Worsening of Hepatitis B infection. GENVOYA is not for use to treat chronic hepatitis B virus (HBV). If you have HBV infection and take GENVOYA, your HBV may get worse (flare-up) if you stop taking GENVOYA. A "flare-up" is when your HBV infection suddenly returns in a worse way than before.

  Do not run out of GENVOYA. Refill your prescription or talk to your healthcare provider before your GENVOYA is all gone.

  Do not stop taking GENVOYA without first talking to your healthcare provider.

  If you stop taking GENVOYA, your healthcare provider will need to check your health often and do blood tests regularly for several months to check your HBV infection. Tell your healthcare provider about any new or unusual symptoms you may have after you stop taking GENVOYA.

What is GENVOYA?

GENVOYA is a prescription medicine that is used without other HIV-1 medicines to treat HIV-1 in people 12 years of age and older:

- who have not received HIV-1 medicines in the past or
- to replace their current HIV-1 medicines in people who have been on the same HIV-1 medicines for at least 6 months, have an amount of HIV-1 in their blood ("viral load") that is less than 50 copies/mL, and have never failed past HIV-1 treatment

HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

GENVOYA contains the prescription medicines elvitegravir (VITEKTA®), cobicistat (TYBOST®), emricitabine (EMTRIVA®) and tenofovir alafenamide.

It is not known if GENVOYA is safe and effective in children under 12 years of age.

When used to treat HIV-1 infection, GENVOYA may:

- Reduce the amount of HIV-1 in your blood.

  This is called "viral load".

- Increase the number of CD4+ (T) cells in your blood that help fight off other infections.

Reducing the amount of HIV-1 and increasing the CD4+ (T) cells in your blood may help improve your immune system. This may reduce your risk of death or getting infections that can happen when your immune system is weak (opportunistic infections).

GENVOYA does not cure HIV-1 infection or AIDS. You must stay on continuous HIV-1 therapy to control HIV-1 infection and decrease HIV-related illnesses.

Avoid doing things that can spread HIV-1 infection to others:

- Do not share or re-use needles or other injection equipment.

- Do not share personal items that can have blood or body fluids on them, like toothbrushes and razor blades.

- Do not have any kind of sex without protection. Always practice safer sex by using a latex or polyurethane condom to lower the chance of sexual contact with semen, vaginal secretions, or blood.

Ask your healthcare provider if you have any questions about how to prevent passing HIV-1 to other people.

Who should not take GENVOYA?

Do not take GENVOYA if you also take a medicine that contains:

- alfuzosin hydrochloride (Uroxatral®)

- cimetidine (Tagamet®), ciprofloxacin (Cipro®), clarithromycin (Biaxin®), cyclosporine (Sandimmune®), dexamethasone (Decadron®), diltiazem (Cardizem®), disulfiram (Antabuse®), famotidine (Pepcid®), fluconazole (Diflucan®), fluoxetine (Prozac®), furosemide (Lasix®), grapefruit juice, griseofulvin (Fulvicin®), heparin, indinavir (Crixivan®), isoniazid (INH®, Rifater®), itraconazole (Sporanox®), ketoconazole (Nizoral®), lamivudine (Epivir®), levodopa (Ladysil®, Lodosyn®), lidocaine (Xylocaine®), linagliptin (Jardiance®), losartan (Cozaar®), methylphenidate (Ritalin®), metformin (Glucophage®), metoprolol (Lopressor®), metronidazole (Flagyl®), midazolam, when taken by mouth, modafinil (Provigil®), morbillivirus, morphine, muscle relaxants, nortriptyline (Amitriptyline®), ondansetron (Zofran®), overnight sleep, paroxetine (Paxil®), prednisone (Prednisone®), protease inhibitors, quinidine (G署rdine®), quinine (Cinchonine®), rifampin (Rifadin®, Rifamate®, Rifater®), ritonavir (Norvir®), sibutramine (Meridia®), simvastatin (Simcor®), sulfamethoxazole-trimethoprim (Bactrim®), tacrolimus (Prograf®), terbinafine (Lamisil®), theophylline, thiamine (Intramine®), trimethoprim (Primobase®), troglitazone (Rezulin®), verapamil (Calan®), warfarin (Coumadin®)

- the herb St. John's wort or a product that contains St. John's wort
What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking GENVOYA?

Before taking GENVOYA, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- have liver problems including hepatitis B infection
- have kidney or bone problems
- have any other medical conditions
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if GENVOYA can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking GENVOYA.
- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed if you take GENVOYA.
  - You should not breastfeed if you have HIV-1 because of the risk of passing HIV-1 to your baby.
  - At least one of the medicines in GENVOYA can pass into your breast milk. It is not known if the other medicines in GENVOYA can pass into your breast milk.
- Talk with your healthcare provider about the best way to feed your baby.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements. Other medicines may affect how GENVOYA works.

Some medicines may interact with GENVOYA. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

- You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for a list of medicines that interact with GENVOYA.
- Do not start a new medicine without telling your healthcare provider.

Your healthcare provider can tell you if it is safe to take GENVOYA with other medicines.

How should I take GENVOYA?

- Take GENVOYA exactly as your healthcare provider tells you to take it. GENVOYA is taken by itself (not with other HIV-1 medicines) to treat HIV-1 infection.
- GENVOYA is usually taken 1 time each day.
- Take GENVOYA with food.
- If you need to take a medicine for indigestion (antacid) that contains aluminum and magnesium hydroxide or calcium carbonate during treatment with GENVOYA, take it at least 2 hours before or after you take GENVOYA.
- Do not change your dose or stop taking GENVOYA without first talking with your healthcare provider. Stay under a healthcare provider’s care when taking GENVOYA.
- Do not miss a dose of GENVOYA.
- If you take too much GENVOYA, call your healthcare provider or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away.
- When your GENVOYA supply starts to run low, get more from your healthcare provider or pharmacy. This is very important because the amount of virus in your blood may increase if the medicine is stopped for even a short time. The virus may develop resistance to GENVOYA and become harder to treat.

What are the possible side effects of GENVOYA?

GENVOYA may cause serious side effects, including:

- See “What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?”
- Changes in body fat can happen in people who take HIV-1 medicine. These changes may include increased amount of fat in the upper back and neck (“buffalo hump”), breast, and around the middle of your body (trunk). Loss of fat from the legs, arms and face may also happen. The exact cause and long-term health effects of these conditions are not known.
- Changes in your immune system (Immune Reconstitution Syndrome) can happen when you start taking HIV-1 medicines. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections that have been hidden in your body for a long time. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you start having any new symptoms after starting your HIV-1 medicine.
- New or worse kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys before you start and while you are taking GENVOYA. Your healthcare provider may tell you to stop taking GENVOYA if you develop new or worse kidney problems.
- Bone problems can happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Bone problems may include bone pain, softening or thinning (which may lead to fractures). Your healthcare provider may need to do tests to check your bones.

The most common side effects of GENVOYA is nausea.

Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effects that bother you or that does not go away.

- These are not all the possible side effects of GENVOYA. For more information, ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist.
- Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

General information about the safe and effective use of GENVOYA.

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in a Patient Information leaflet. Do not use GENVOYA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give GENVOYA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Brief Summary summarizes the most important information about GENVOYA. If you would like more information, talk with your healthcare provider. You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for information about GENVOYA that is written for health professionals.

For more information, call 1-800-445-3235 or go to www.GENVOYA.com.

Keep GENVOYA and all medicines out of reach of children.

Issued: November 2015

EMTRIVA, GENVOYA, the GENVOYA Logo, GILEAD, the GILEAD Logo, GSI, TYBOST, and VITEKTA are trademarks of Gilead Sciences, Inc., or its related companies. All other marks referenced herein are the property of their respective owners.

© 2015 Gilead Sciences, Inc. All rights reserved. GEN0002 11/15
Fashion Optical
The Art Of Eye Wear

BIGGEST SALE EVER!!

35% OFF
First Frame*

45% OFF
Second Frame*

55% OFF
Third Frame*

Call Today 214-526-6006

Progressive lenses in as little as 24 hours for most prescriptions, made in-house.
Optometrist on Site

www.FashionOpticalDallas.com

3430 Oak Lawn Ave  214-526-6006
Store Hours: M-F 9-5:30pm  Sat. 10-5pm  Sun. 12-5pm

Open 7 days a week, Optometrist on site
Exclusive Distributor of the m.GIANNI Collection

*Cannot be combined with insurance, sunglasses and certain lines excluded. See associate for details.
We accept: EyeMed, VSP, OPTUMHealth, Superior Vision and Spectera.
12 Sold: Lies, sex and human trafficking
14 Community is frustrated with the feds
16 Stop smoking: Ask, screen, intervene

20 The man who invented Santa Claus
25 Fewer gay ski weeks scheduled
27 Rebel heart: James Dean bio
28 Toyota offers the anti-Prius

ON THE COVER
Cover design by Kevin Thomas

10 The Gay Agenda 31 Calendar
12 News 35 Ask Howard
18 Community Voices 36 Scene
20 Life+Style 40 Classifieds

dallasvoice.com
The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas

general & cosmetic dentistry
CAROLE ANN BOYD DDS
4514 COLE AVE, STE 905
DALLAS, TX 75205
214-521-6261 • DRBOYD.NET

Catholic Mass for the LGBT community
Sunday, December 6
at 6:00 pm
CATHEDRAL OF HOPE
Interfaith Peace Chapel, Lower Level
dignitydallas@hotmail.com | 972-729-9572
www.dignitydallas.net
CELEBRATING THE WHOLENESS AND HOLINESS OF LGBT
CATHOLICS FOR MORE THAN 40 YEARS

TEXAS NEWS
12 Sold: Lies, sex and human trafficking
14 Community is frustrated with the feds
16 Stop smoking: Ask, screen, intervene

LIFE+STYLE
20 The man who invented Santa Claus
25 Fewer gay ski weeks scheduled
27 Rebel heart: James Dean bio
28 Toyota offers the anti-Prius

BANKRUPTCY SPECIALIST
CONVENIENT OAK LAWN LOCATION
EZ PAYMENT PLAN
FREE CONSULTATION
FREE PARKING
Saturday Daytime and Evening Appts.
214 855-7888
Offices in Dallas, Texas
We are a debt relief agency. We help people file for Bankruptcy Relief under the Bankruptcy Code.
Board Certified, Consumer Bankruptcy Law, Texas Board of Legal Specialization.

1419 Oaklaw - $799,000
Modern 3/3/3 LA Contemporary Home • 2,624 SF
Lake Highlands

1923 Forest Grade Circle - $699,000
Expansive 4/4/3 LA Single-Story Home • 3,724 SF
North Dallas

124 S. Montclair - $669,000
Stunning New Construction 5/3.1/2 LA Craftsman • 3,162 SF
Winnetka Heights

1745 Timbergrove Circle - $679,000
Dynamic MCM 4/3/3 LA, .33 Acres w/ Golf Views • 2,622 SF
Timbergrove Circle

726 S. Edgefield - $212,000
Charming 2/2/2 LA Brick Bungalow, .25 Acre Lot • 1,534 SF Elmwood

BOYD

BOYD

dallasvoice.com
The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas

general & cosmetic dentistry
CAROLE ANN BOYD DDS
4514 COLE AVE, STE 905
DALLAS, TX 75205
214-521-6261 • DRBOYD.NET

Catholic Mass for the LGBT community
Sunday, December 6
at 6:00 pm
CATHEDRAL OF HOPE
Interfaith Peace Chapel, Lower Level
dignitydallas@hotmail.com | 972-729-9572
www.dignitydallas.net
CELEBRATING THE WHOLENESS AND HOLINESS OF LGBT
CATHOLICS FOR MORE THAN 40 YEARS

TEXAS NEWS
12 Sold: Lies, sex and human trafficking
14 Community is frustrated with the feds
16 Stop smoking: Ask, screen, intervene

LIFE+STYLE
20 The man who invented Santa Claus
25 Fewer gay ski weeks scheduled
27 Rebel heart: James Dean bio
28 Toyota offers the anti-Prius

ON THE COVER
Cover design by Kevin Thomas

10 The Gay Agenda 31 Calendar
12 News 35 Ask Howard
18 Community Voices 36 Scene
20 Life+Style 40 Classifieds

dallasvoice.com
The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas

general & cosmetic dentistry
CAROLE ANN BOYD DDS
4514 COLE AVE, STE 905
DALLAS, TX 75205
214-521-6261 • DRBOYD.NET

Catholic Mass for the LGBT community
Sunday, December 6
at 6:00 pm
CATHEDRAL OF HOPE
Interfaith Peace Chapel, Lower Level
dignitydallas@hotmail.com | 972-729-9572
www.dignitydallas.net
CELEBRATING THE WHOLENESS AND HOLINESS OF LGBT
CATHOLICS FOR MORE THAN 40 YEARS

TEXAS NEWS
12 Sold: Lies, sex and human trafficking
14 Community is frustrated with the feds
16 Stop smoking: Ask, screen, intervene

LIFE+STYLE
20 The man who invented Santa Claus
25 Fewer gay ski weeks scheduled
27 Rebel heart: James Dean bio
28 Toyota offers the anti-Prius

ON THE COVER
Cover design by Kevin Thomas

10 The Gay Agenda 31 Calendar
12 News 35 Ask Howard
18 Community Voices 36 Scene
20 Life+Style 40 Classifieds

dallasvoice.com
The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas

general & cosmetic dentistry
CAROLE ANN BOYD DDS
4514 COLE AVE, STE 905
DALLAS, TX 75205
214-521-6261 • DRBOYD.NET

Catholic Mass for the LGBT community
Sunday, December 6
at 6:00 pm
CATHEDRAL OF HOPE
Interfaith Peace Chapel, Lower Level
dignitydallas@hotmail.com | 972-729-9572
www.dignitydallas.net
CELEBRATING THE WHOLENESS AND HOLINESS OF LGBT
CATHOLICS FOR MORE THAN 40 YEARS

TEXAS NEWS
12 Sold: Lies, sex and human trafficking
14 Community is frustrated with the feds
16 Stop smoking: Ask, screen, intervene

LIFE+STYLE
20 The man who invented Santa Claus
25 Fewer gay ski weeks scheduled
27 Rebel heart: James Dean bio
28 Toyota offers the anti-Prius

ON THE COVER
Cover design by Kevin Thomas

10 The Gay Agenda 31 Calendar
12 News 35 Ask Howard
18 Community Voices 36 Scene
20 Life+Style 40 Classifieds

dallasvoice.com
The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas
Black Eyed Pea declares bankruptcy

Black Eyed Pea restaurants in Texas have declared Chapter 11 bankruptcy. The restaurant on Cedar Springs Road is the original Black Eyed Pea and has been in that location since 1975. In the mid-80s, the restaurant doubled in size into its current space. That restaurant is rumored to be closing sometime in 2016 along with other bars and restaurants on that block as part of an expansion of the Melrose Hotel.

Over the past two years, 15 Black Eyed Pea restaurants in Texas have closed. The company also owns The Dixie House in Lakewood Shopping Center. Both the Cedar Springs restaurant and the Lakewood location are expected to continue operation for now. Chapter 11 allows a company to continue operation while re-organizing.

— David Taffet

Louisiana LGBTs getting protections, thanks to new governor

Louisiana Gov.-elect John Bel Edwards has announced that once he is inaugurated, he will issue an executive order protecting LGBT employees of the state and state contractors from discrimination and harassment in the workplace.

Edwards, a Democrat, will be inaugurated Jan. 11. He follows failed Republican presidential candidate Bobby Jindal, who, even after the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in June legalizing same-sex marriage, fought to keep his state from issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples. When he was first inaugurated in 2007, Jindal said that laws protecting LGBT people from discrimination were not necessary.

Edwards’ transition team has not given a timeline on when he will issue the directive, and NOLA.com notes that an executive order would cover state workers and government contractors in agencies and departments the governor oversees, but wouldn’t necessarily bind parts of state government outside the governor’s control, such as the judiciary.

There is no statewide Louisiana law protecting LGBT people from discrimination or harassment in employment. New Orleans and Shreveport do have local nondiscrimination ordinances, and Jefferson Parish and Lafayette Parish governments have policies in place protecting local government workers. East Baton Rouge Mayor Kip Holden has issued an executive order covering his local government workers as well. Former Gov. Edwin Edwards, a Democrat, issued an executive order in the 1990s protecting LGBT state employees — a move that was groundbreaking in its time. Former Gov. Kathleen Blanco, also a Democrat, issued a similar executive order, expanding it to prohibit harassment, as well. But the the Republicans took over Louisiana’s governor’s seat, and Mike Foster and then Jindal both refused to protect LGBT workers.

— Tammye Nash

Cathedral of Hope and Dallas Voice joined the commemoration of World AIDS Day on Dec. 1.
COMING
Friday, December 25!

Year in Review

AD Space Deadline
Friday, December 18!
Contact Us TODAY!
214.754.8710

dallasvoice
The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas

advertising@dallasvoice.com • dallasvoice.com
1825 Market Center Blvd. Suite 240 Dallas, Texas 75027

“Come see why so many people in our community choose Oak Lawn Eye Associates”

Dr. Randy Atwood, Therapeutic Optometrist
Dr. Peter Chao, Therapeutic Optometrist

Exams for glasses and contacts, only takes 30 minutes or less.
We sell all major brands of contact lenses. Fashion Optical is right next door.
Shop where local and national celebrities shop for the latest in affordable eyewear by top designers from all over the world.

Call Today 214.219.3393
Mon, Wed, Fri 9-5pm
Sat 10-3pm

3725 Lemmon @ Oak Lawn
Conveniently located inside
Fashion Optical
The Art of Eye Wear

We accept: • EyeMed • VSP • Optum Health • Superior Vision • United Health Care

Visit us online www.oaklawneyeassociates.com
Caesar is a bulldog/American mastiff mix. He is 4 years old and is a big boy, weighing about 106 pounds, who needs big love. Despite his size, though, Caesar is a gentle love bug of a dog who just wants a forever home. His adoption fee is $185.

Caesar and other pets are available for adoption from Operation Kindness, 3201 Earhart Drive, Carrollton. The no-kill shelter is open six days: Monday, 3-8 p.m.; closed Tuesday; Wednesday, 3-8 p.m.; Thursday, noon-8 p.m.; Friday, noon-5 p.m.; Saturday, 11 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Sunday, noon-5 p.m. The cost is $110 for cats, $135 for kittens, $150 for dogs over 1 year, and $175 for puppies. The cost includes the spay/neuter surgery, microchipping, vaccinations, heartworm test for dogs, leukemia and FIV test for cats, and more. Those who adopt two pets at the same time receive a $20 discount.

Have an event coming up? Email your information to staff writer James Russell at russell@dallasvoice.com by Thursday at 10 a.m. for that week’s issue.

DECEMBER

• Weekly: Lambda Weekly every Sunday at 1 p.m. on 89.3 KNON-FM. This week attorneys Michael Hindman and Kasey Krummel discuss a transgender discrimination suit they’ve filed; United Black Ellument hosts discussion on HIV/AIDS in the black community at 7 p.m. every second Tuesday of the month at 3116 Commerce St., Suite C; Fuse game night every Monday evening but the last of the month at 8 p.m. at the Fuse space in the ilume, 4123 Cedar Springs Road, Apt 2367; Fuse Connect every Wednesday from 7 p.m. at the Fuse Space. For more information call or e-mail Ruben Ramirez at 214-540-4500 or rramirez@myresourcecenter.org.

• Through Dec. 10: AIDS Arms Holiday Toy and Food Drive
From now through Dec. 10, AIDS Arms is collecting non-perishable food and unwrapped toys for families and for children ages 1-17 years. Drop off donations at AIDS Arms, 351 W. Jefferson Blvd. Ste. 300 or pick up can be arranged at Caven Enterprises. For more information call or e-mail Neacy Turner at 214-521-5191 ext. 3336 or nturner@aidsarms.org.

• Dec. 4: HRC DFW Federal Club Holiday Party
Celebrate the holidays and year’s accomplishments with cocktails, hors d’oeuvres and entertainment from 7:30-10 p.m. at 2616 Commerce Event Center, 2616 Commerce St. Free for Federal Club members. $50 in advance and $70 at door for guests. R.S.V.P. by Nov. 24 at Eventbrite.com/event/18991094876.

• Dec. 5: Get Covered North Texas
Marketplace health insurance enrollment assistance hosted by Trans Pride Initiative. Resource Center, 2701 Reagan St. Noon-4 p.m. Free.

• Dec. 5: Defend Planned Parenthood
A vigil for victims of the Planned Parenthood shooting. Dallas City Hall, 1300 Marilla St. 5-6:30 p.m.
• Dec. 5: Women’s Alliance for Leadership Banquet: Empowering Texas LGBTQ Women
Non-profit group dedicated to empowering Texas LGBT women hosts its first annual banquet featuring three-course dinner, entertainment and a silent auction. Speakers include Dallas County Justice of the Peace Sara Martinez, attorney Katie Sprinkle and transgender activist Oliver Blumber. Rep. Mary Gonzalez, D-El Paso, will receive a leadership award. For tickets and more information visit WAB15.eventbrite.com.

• Dec. 5: DFW Trans Ladies Monthly Meeting
Meets from 7-8:30 p.m. on the first Saturday of every month at Agape MCC, 4615 E. California Parkway, Fort Worth. For more information, email info@dfwtgladies.org or visit DFWTG.Ladies.org.

• Dec. 6: Vintage Martini’s Christmas Rose Party for AIN
Drinks and light appetizers from local establishments and items for sale from 1-4 p.m. at Vintage Martini, 2923 N. Henderson Ave. Portion of proceeds benefit AIDS Interfaith Network’s annual Blomin’ Ball. $10 suggested donation. For more information and to RSVP visit On.fb.me/1PMwut.

• Dec. 6: The Dallas Way Brunch Honoring Contributors and Donors
11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at Park Towers, 3310 Fairmount St. For more information and to RSVP visit On.fb.me/1jkgO3I. Reservations accepted until Dec. 4.

• Dec. 6: Christmas with Charity America
Mr. and Miss Charity America 2016 Larry Henderson and Trisha Davis present an evening of entertainment that benefits Legacy Founders Cottage and Home for the Holidays. Round-Up Saloon, 3912 Cedar Springs Road. 7 p.m.

• Dec. 7: Stonewall Democrats Holiday 2015 Awards Party
Lite bites and a cash bar. Round-Up Saloon, 3912 Cedar Springs Road. 7-9 p.m. Free.

• Dec. 8: Tarrant County Stonewall Democrats Meeting
LGBT Democratic group meets at 7 p.m. every second Tuesday of the month at Tommy’s Hamburger, 2455 Forest Park Blvd., Fort Worth. For more information e-mail Info@tarrantstonewall.org.

• Dec. 8: Survivors Offering Support
Support group meeting for survivors of violent attacks meets every second Tuesday of the month at 7 p.m. Resource Center, 2701 Reagan.

• Dec. 10: Black Tie Dinner distribution party
Enjoy lite bites, wine by La Crema Winery and complimentary Stoli Vodka cocktails as Black Tie Dinner celebrates its beneficiaries and distribute the money raised by Black Tie Dinner 2015. Brendan Bass Showroom, 2001 Irving Blvd. 6:30-8:30 p.m.

• Dec. 10: Senior Moments: HO HO Holiday Party
Grey Pride holiday party with complimentary hors d’œvres and a raffle drawing for door prizes. You’re welcome to stay for dinner. Tallywackers, 4218 Lemmon Ave. 6-8 p.m. Free.

• Dec. 10: The Group
Support group for black men who have sex with men living with HIV meets every second and fourth Thursday of the month from 7-9 p.m. at a private location. For more information call 214-455-7316.

• Dec. 10: Fort Worth Transgender Resource Group
Support and resource group meets every second Thursday of the month at 7 p.m. at the Barron House, 516 College Ave., Fort Worth. Use side door.

• Dec. 10: Lost Souls Rugby Toy Drive and Tacky Sweater Contest
Wear your tackiest sweater and bring an unwrapped toy to benefit The Family Place. Round-Up Saloon, 3912 Cedar Springs Road. 6-9 p.m.

• Dec. 11: High Tech Happy Hour
Texas Instruments Pride, the LGBT and ally diversity group, hosts its monthly High Tech Happy Hour to increase professional and social contacts between groups and individuals and to foster community. 5:30-7:30 p.m. at Cedars Social, 1326 S. Lamar Street. For more information e-mail Paul von Wupperfeld at pavw@ti.com.

• Dec. 11: CinéWilde Presents Auntie Mame
Doors open at 8 p.m. with pre-show discussion at 8:30 p.m. and movie at 9 p.m. and Ugly Christmas Sweater after party at 11 p.m. at Texas Theatre, 231 W. Jefferson For tickets visit Bit.ly/212n291.

• Dec. 12: The Teddy Bear Party
Benefits Family Equality Council, Children’s Health, Equality Texas and Stand Up to Cancer. 6:00 Cedar Springs Road. 8 p.m. - midnight. Door admission: One teddy bear and $50 minimum donation.

• Dec. 12: DFW Sisters Third Annual Salvation Sisters Benefit
The DFW Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence ring their bells to raise money for HIV and AIDS groups from 9 p.m.-midnight outside of Hunky’s, 3930 Cedar Springs Road. For more information visit On.fb.me/1NbzcGq.

• Dec. 12: Christmas Cantata
Let There Be Christmas is a cantata written by Joseph M. Martin that will be performed by four Cedar Creek area church choirs. Celebration on the Lake Church, 9120 S. Hwy 198, Payne Springs. 7 p.m.
Johnny’s story

At 17, Johnny had just finished his junior year in high school when, he said, his mother kicked him out of the house after finding out that he is gay. While religious objections prompt some parents to throw their LGBT children out, Johnny said that wasn’t the case with his mother. She just didn’t want him living in her house if there was a possibility he would be having unsafe sex with a lot of different people.

“She didn’t want me to have sex with a lot of people,” Johnny said. “She was worried about my health and safety. If anything happened to me, she didn’t want to be responsible.”

And, he added, he wasn’t willing to tell her where he was going each time he went out. He didn’t want to follow her rules.

So Johnny moved out of his suburban Dallas home and moved in with a man in Oak Lawn he met on Grindr. He had a plan: He was going to dance for money to help pay the rent.

“I walked into a bar with almost no clothes on,” he said. “I got on a box and started dancing and made lots of money.”

Then Ryan Uresti, 24, the roommate of the man Johnny was staying with, posted a new profile for the young man on Grindr. Uresti, Johnny said, “found me someone. [But] the guy I was set up with turned out to be a police investigator.”

Or at least that’s what 46-year-old Matthew Bourasa told Johnny. Bourasa claimed he and his roommate, Kourtlyn Turpin, 21, were police officers, and Bourasa threatened to arrest Johnny for prostitution, the young man said. But, he added, Bourasa told Johnny they wouldn’t arrest him if he agreed to live with them.

What Johnny didn’t know at the time, according to police, was that Uresti actually sold Johnny to Bourasa as a sex slave. At first, Johnny thought he had a good relationship with Bourasa and Turpin during the six weeks he lived there. Now he realizes that the two men spent those six weeks brainwashing him.

Bourasa, who worked during the day, presented himself to Johnny as a father figure. He would bring home other homeless boys who were allegedly hustlers, and have them talk to Johnny. “He let me talk to them about how prostitution wasn’t the way to go,” Johnny said.

Those young men would stay the night, then leave the next day.

At first, Johnny continued to dance in bars. But Bourasa made him stop. “He said it was dangerous for me,” Johnny recalled. But he knows now that wasn’t the real reason: “He thought I wouldn’t come home.”

So Johnny got other jobs, first at Hunky’s and then at Thairrific. Either Bourasa or Turpin would drive Johnny to work, giving them yet more control over the young man.

Thairrific owner Danny Sikora said Johnny said something to a coworker soon after he started working at the restaurant that made Sikora realize there was definitely something strange about the young man’s living arrangements. And the longer Johnny worked there, the more he revealed.

The tipping point came on Johnny’s 18th birthday day. He said that neither Bourasa nor Turpin had touched him sexually up until that time. But when he turned 18, he said, the men raped him. And Bourasa raped him more than once, he said.

Then one of Johnny’s coworkers at Thairrific did an Internet search and discovered that not only was Bourasa not a police officer, he was a sex offender with a record dating back to 1992.

That, Johnny said, was when everything changed.

Sikora called Amanda Robinson, who runs the youth organization Real Live Connection, and told her what he thought was happening. Robinson responded immediately. Johnny said he left his laptop, textbooks and clothes at Bourasa’s and left the restaurant that night with Robinson.

“Amanda was an angel to me,” Johnny said. “Amanda called the police, and I agreed to press charges.”

One gay teen tells how he ended up in the clutches of sexual predators — and of how he escaped

Justice in the works

After Robinson called police, Bourasa, Turpin and Uresti were arrested.

Bourasa has been held in Dallas County jail since Oct. 30 on $400,000 bond. He’s charged with impersonating a police officer, two counts of sexual assault and trafficking of a person under 18 for prostitution or forced labor.

Turpin is being held in Dallas County jail on $300,000 bond, charged with impersonating a public servant, sexual assault and trafficking a person. He’s also on hold from other jurisdictions for burglary and an unpaid traffic violation.

Uresti is charged with trafficking and is out of jail on a $100,000 bond.

According to the National Human Trafficking Resource Center, so far this year there have been 2,793 reported cases of human trafficking in the

2015 Human Trafficking Statistics

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type</th>
<th>No. of cases</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sex trafficking</td>
<td>2,084</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Labor trafficking</td>
<td>377</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not specified</td>
<td>242</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sex and labor</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total cases</td>
<td>2,793</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cases in Texas</td>
<td>214</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Second to California with 477)

Gender

- Female: 2,339
- Male: 321

Age

- Adult: 1,757
- Minor: 881

Citizenship

- U.S.: 797
- Foreign: 534

— from the National Human Trafficking Resource Center

Myths about human trafficking

Be aware of these enduring myths about human trafficking:

Myth: Trafficking must involve the crossing of borders.
Fact: Despite the use of the word “trafficking,” victims can actually be held within their own country—anti-trafficking laws don’t require that victims must have traveled from somewhere else.

Myth: U.S. citizens can’t be trafficked.
Fact: They can and they are.

Myth: Victims know what they are getting into or have chances to escape.
Fact: They’re actually duped into it and may not even think of escaping because of threats against them or ignorance of the law.

Myth: Victims are never paid.
Fact: Sometimes they are paid, but not very much.

Myth: Victims never have freedom of movement.
Fact: Some victims can move about, but are coerced into always returning, perhaps with a threat against their families back home.

One last note: Human trafficking is often confused with alien smuggling, which includes those who consent to smuggling to get across a border illegally.

— from the FBI
Back on track

For his part, Johnny is working to get his life back on track.

Robinson said while the LGBT community has been trying to keep the adult community in Oak Lawn safe from attackers targeting the community in recent weeks, LGBT youth face violence all the time.

“They’re taken advantage of and preyed on,” she said of the community’s young people.

Once Johnny was safe from immediate harm, Robinson pulled together some of her resources to get him the help he needed. When Johnny blamed himself for what happened, Robinson had him write about his feelings and emotions. When she read what he had written, she told him: “I’m not a counselor, but I know broken.” Then she set about arranging counseling for the young man.

Robinson also brought Johnny and his mother back together. They’ve reconciled now, and he’s moved back home, an ending that Robinson said, while happy, is unusual.

Johnny said he knows that “being close to the bars was not good for me,” and living in the suburbs provides less temptation to go out. But when he does go out, he said, he tells his mother where he’s going.

Johnny also promised to finish high school. He’s been studying at home and should graduate in January. Then he’ll take advanced placement tests in May and plans to go to college.

Things are working out well, Johnny said, just because he is willing to do some simple things and follow a few rules his mother has laid out. He said he and his mother talk now — but not about what happened to him during the time he was gone.

“I’m just not ready to talk with her about it,” he said.

Johnny said that while he wants to keep his identity secret, he wanted to tell his story in hopes that other LGBT youth can learn from his experience and avoid making the same mistakes he made.

“There are better resources than prostitution,” Johnny said, pointing to Promise House in Oak Cliff for homeless youth and other shelters as places youth can stay if they’re kicked out of their homes.

Johnny admitted that he still dances in the bars some, but he offered this warning to others considering that course: “Dancing doesn’t have to lead to anything else, but a lot of times it does. You have to grow up pretty quickly.”

U.S. California had the highest number of reported cases, with 477. Texas came in second with 214 cases.

Of those cases, 2,084 were sex trafficking cases, 377 labor trafficking cases, 242 were unspecified and 90 were labor and sex combined. Of the victims, 2,339 were female and 321 were male; 1,757 were adults and 881 were minors; 797 were U.S. citizens and 334 were foreign nationals.

The FBI’s website lists a number of “enduring myths about human trafficking,” and debunks them.

For one, individuals don’t have to be taken from one country to another to be victims of human trafficking, and anti-trafficking laws don’t require that victims be transported from one place to another. And despite common belief, U.S. citizens can be victims of human trafficking, and as the statistics noted earlier prove, they often are.

Victims are sometimes paid, though not very much, the FBI notes.

Victims of human trafficking often have no idea what they are getting into, according to the FBI. They are duped into cooperating with their captors and then they don’t try to escape even if they have the chance because they have been threatened or they don’t understand the law. In Johnny’s case, even though he was allowed to move about freely — going to work, for example — he returned to his captor’s each day because he thought he had no choice; he believed they were police officers and that if he did not return, he would be sent to jail for prostitution.

from The National Coalition for the Homeless, June 2009
• 20 percent of homeless youth are LGBT. In comparison, the general youth population is only 10 percent LGBT.
• While homeless youth typically experience severe family conflict as the primary reason for their homelessness, LGBT youth are twice as likely to experience sexual abuse before the age of 12.
• LGBT youth, once homeless, are at higher risk for victimization, mental health problems, and unsafe sexual practices. 58.7 percent of LGBT homeless youth have been sexually victimized, compared to 33.4 percent of heterosexual homeless youth.
• LGBT youth are roughly 7.4 times more likely to experience acts of sexual violence than heterosexual homeless youth.
• LGBT homeless youth commit suicide at higher rates (62 percent) than heterosexual homeless youth (29 percent).

from Sex Trafficking of LGBT Youth Posted on Nov, 11, 2013 by Michelle Lillicie, at HumanTraffickingSearch.net
• 48 percent of homeless LGBT youth report running away from home due to family rejection of their sexual orientation, and 17 percent ended up on the streets after they aged out of the foster care system.
• Within 48 hours of running away, 1 in 3 homeless youth will be recruited by a trafficker into commercial sexual exploitation.
• LGBT Youth and Victimization
• LGBT youth who face discrimination, name-calling and abuse in their childhood are more likely to have low self-esteem and higher rates of mental health problems. Traffickers are known to prey on the financially destitute, the young and vulnerable and those with previous experiences of abuse.
• The Center for American Progress put out a report indicating that young men who have sex with men (gay or bisexual youth) are more likely to be forced into prostitution than any other youth population. This becomes apparent when looking at arrest statistics where 1 percent of heterosexual boys are detained for prostitution, compared with 10 percent of their gay or bisexual peers.
• A study in Canada found that youth who identify as LGBT were 3 times as likely to engage in survival sex than their heterosexual peers.
• The main reason cited for agreeing to survival sex is to have a bed to sleep in for the night. Engaging in risky behavior like survival sex can lead to violence, rape and commercial sexual exploitation.

Robinson said while the LGBT community has been trying to keep the adult community in Oak Lawn safe from attackers targeting the community in recent weeks, LGBT youth face violence all the time.

“They’re taken advantage of and preyed on,” she said of the community’s young people.

Now offering CoolSculpting®. FREEZE away your fat from anywhere on the body. Permanent reduction!

$250 off per session at our Christmas Toy Drive. Dec. 10 from 5-8 pm.
Offer expires 12/31/2015; Not to be combined with other specials or promotions. 214-521-5277
Community members frustrated with lack of action plan after meeting

DAVID TAFFET | Senior Staff Writer
taffet@dallasvoice.com

Local community members sat frustrated through a meeting this week with the Northern District of Texas Department of Justice Community Relations Service and a representative of the FBI Dallas field office who maintains hate crime statistics.

Those attending had come to the meeting hoping to learn what the two federal agencies could do to assist local police in investigating the recent spate of attacks against gay men in Oak Lawn. But no one had any solutions to offer.

Reatta Forte described the DOJ’s Community Relations Service as “America’s peacemakers, specializing in de-escalation.” She explained, “We enhance communities’ efforts to resolve differences or tensions.”

Forte said her office conducts community forums, does educational work and brings groups together to work out differences. But at the meeting held at Cathedral of Hope on Nov. 30, she was speaking to a group of about 50 LGBT people who wanted a response to the attacks in the community that have escalated through this year. But her audience was disappointed to learn the CRS had no response ready.

Forte’s presentation concentrated on prosecution and a law that allows hate crimes to be prosecuted in federal courts rather than state courts. She explained that decisions decide whether to transfer a case to federal court based on possible penalties and whether the statute of limitations has expired at either the state or federal level.

But prosecution comes only after a suspect is in custody. The suspects in the Oak Lawn attacks remain at large. And therein lies the rub.

Richard Dupont was one of those who left the meeting angrier than he was when he arrived. “Nothing got accomplished,” Dupont said, noting that Dallas police were “noticeably absent” from the meeting. He said he sees empty police cars parked in the area, but no police on patrol.

Dupont said he lives in Oak Lawn because he likes being in a walkable neighborhood. If he goes to Cedar Springs for a drink, he likes being able to walk home.

“How I can’t do that,” he said. “I want solutions about what’s going on in my neighborhood.”

Dupont said Department of Justice representatives at the meeting offered no solutions to the recent crime spree. Assistant U.S. Attorney Lisa Miller said she couldn’t comment on any ongoing investigations, but she didn’t address what tools her office has on hand to help Dallas police, either.

Several attendees expressed concern that recent crimes in Oak Lawn would not be reported to the FBI as hate crimes because they might not be able to be prosecuted as hate crimes. FBI representative Randall Ryan said anyone can report crimes to the FBI.

Suspected hate crimes can be reported directly to the Dallas field office at 972-559-5000. Ryan said to leave contact information so someone from his office can call back and investigate.

One person questioned how a report about an attack on an undocumented immigrant would be handled.

“We’re not ICE,” Randall replied.

Miller agreed that deportation wouldn’t be a goal of her office, but couldn’t guarantee the person reporting an attack would not be deported. A law that was meant to extend a visa for a tourist who was a crime victim so that person could remain in the U.S. for a trial, is worded broadly enough that it would protect the undocumented crime victim and extend legal status through a trial.

Brite Divinity School was a sponsor of the meeting, and Dean Joretta Marshall pointed to religion as a root cause of the attacks on the LGBT community.

“Religion is being used by too many people to spread hate and we can’t tolerate that,” she said, adding that the community must continue to be vigilant “until every pastor in every church realizes we all have a place at God’s table.”

But authorities aren’t labeling most of the recent attacks in Oak Lawn as hate crimes, and Miller explained why many crimes are not prosecuted as hate crimes.

In most cases, Miller said, prosecutors have to prove, usually beyond a shadow of a doubt, that someone committed the crime. When hate crime enhancements are added on state prosecutions or when someone is charged with committing a hate crime under the federal statute, prosecutors have to prove not only that the defendant committed the crime, but also their motive in committing the crime. That can be tricky.

In the case of 12 reported hate crimes in Dallas, only the first victim remembers hearing his assailants call him “fag” as they were beating him with a baseball bat. Other victims were knocked unconscious early in the attacks or have blocked out at least parts of the incidents.

Attack victim Michael Dominguez doesn’t re-14

dallasvoice.com  12.04.15

FEDS, Page 17
WE FOCUS ON HIV TO HELP YOU FOCUS ON TODAY

Ask your doctor if a medicine made by Gilead is right for you.

onepillchoices.com

© 2015 Gilead Sciences, Inc. All rights reserved. UNBC1848 03/15
AIDS Arms offers smoking cessation program

DAVID TAFFET | Senior Staff Writer
taffet@dallasvoice.com

Smoking can be an immune suppressant, so AIDS Arms is now offering a new smoking cessation program in conjunction with the University of Texas at Austin.

AIDS Arms Medical Director Dr. Gene Voskuhl said stopping smoking is the best thing people with HIV can do next to taking their medications.

The incidence of smoking is much higher in the HIV-positive population than the population in general. Voskuhl blamed that on HIV stigma as well as higher rates of smoking among gay people and other minority populations with higher rates of HIV in general.

The program was designed by the state with educators who know how to communicate, Voskuhl said, adding that the program is pretty simple.

"Ask, screen and intervene," he said. "If they’re ready to quit in 30 days, we can support them."

Doctors at AIDS Arms clinics will ask patients if they smoke and if they’re ready to quit. If so, they’ll refer them through their electronic medical records system that will send a very limited amount of data to the program in Austin.

Normally doctors can’t prescribe nicotine gum or patches, because they are over-the-counter medications. However, in this program, those can be supplied.

The person quitting will receive phone calls from nurses trained in motivational techniques. Someone who tries, but fails to quit — maybe that person went from two packs a day to one — may be re-referred into the program three to six months later.

Voskuhl said once someone quits smoking, he should see an increase in CD4 cells. Cilia in the lungs that help clear secretions and viruses should come back. Incidents of bronchitis and pneumonia should decrease. Someone with HIV who quits smoking should also see the usual benefits as well — lower chances for cancer, COPD and other illnesses.

Anyone who is a client of AIDS Arms, whether or not they are a patient at Trinity or Peabody health and wellness centers, may participate in the smoking cessation program.
member much of what happened after his skull was cracked by a bat in a blow that came from behind. What he does know was he was attacked on Cedar Springs Road, somewhere between S4 and the end of that block. The first 911 call made on his behalf came from Havana, across the street.

No one would randomly target someone on Cedar Springs Road without knowing he was targeting a gay person, Dominguez argued. But investigators haven’t classified the assault on Dominguez as a hate crime because he doesn’t remember if his attacker used derogatory words. It’s being referred to as a robbery — even though his attackers took nothing from him — or as an aggravated assault.

District Attorney Susan Hawk’s LGBT liaison Craig McNeil said the DA’s office conducts its own investigation before taking a case to trial. And they base their decision on whether to prosecute a case as a hate crime based on more than just the police classification of the incident.

“If we get information something is a hate crime, we can go for a penalty enhancement,” McNeil said.

Rafael McDonnell, Resource Center communications and advocacy manager, was the victim of a crime in New Orleans three years ago and said police in that city were unresponsive.

When attacks began in Oak Lawn, McDonnell said, he wasn’t going to allow the same thing to happen here.

“We’re pretty wired right now,” McDonnell said. “If you don’t want to tell the police, tell one of us.”

Dominguez offered his assistance to current victims and future attack victims. He also had a warning for anyone at the forum that was there just to placate the community.

“We’re going to get done,” Dominguez said.

Officer Brian Nolff will host a Volunteers in Patrol (V.I.P) class at the Oak Lawn branch library, 4100 Cedar Springs Road, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 19. This program is designed to reduce crime by having citizens patrol their own neighborhoods and report any suspicious or criminal activity to the police.

Anyone interested in participating should contact Officer Nolff before the class to complete the necessary paperwork. RSVP to brian.nolff@dpd.ci.dallas.tx.us.

“We have lots of activists in this community.”

After the meeting, Stonewall Democrats President Jay Narey said he would have liked local police and business owners to have participated in the forum. He called the meeting “another community relations appearance,” and would have preferred to hear about how the FBI and Department of Justice could collaborate with local law enforcement, even if they couldn’t comment on specifics of current cases.

In addition to increased lighting on dark side streets, Narey said he wants to see follow-through with the installation of the additional cameras and “elevated police presence until some arrests have been made.”

Meanwhile, activists like Michael Phelps promised to continue private patrols through the neighborhood.

“For me it starts with the police getting out of their damn cars and actually talking to people,” Phelps said.

Collin County-based C.U.R.E. — Community Unity Respect Education — marked World AIDS Day — Tuesday, Dec. 1 — with an event at Noah’s Event Venue in Richardson. Dr. Michael Gottlieb, one of the founders of the American Foundation for AIDS Research (amfAR) and the first doctor to associate symptoms a patient of his displayed with a low T-cell count, was the keynote speaker. James Nelson, operations and marketing manager of The Original Cupcakery and Miss Gay Texas State pageant founders Michael Champion and Bill Lindsey, pictured above, performing live, received Open Heart awards. AIDS Interfaith Network board chair Gregg Gunter received the Ryan G. Barrows Award for his contributions to agencies throughout the AIDS community. (David Taffet/Dallas Voice)
Enough!

As the killing continues, we have to move beyond hyperbole and hate

Enough. No more. Really. No more shootings. No more bombings. No more hatred and rage.

Less than a month ago, on Nov. 13, terrorists associated with DAESH (some people incorrectly call the group ISIS or ISIL) murdered 130 people and injured 360-plus more in coordinated suicide bombings in shootings in Paris.

On Friday, Nov. 27, Robert Dear walked into a Planned Parenthood clinic in Colorado Springs and started shooting, killing three people and wounding nine more.

On Wednesday, Dec. 2, Syed Rizwan Farook and his wife, Tashfeen Malik, walked into a social services center in San Bernardino, Calif., and opened fire, killing 14 people and injuring 21 more.

And to add to the horror, these are just the tip of the bloody iceberg. There have been 353 mass shootings so far this year in the U.S. — and as I write this, on Thursday, Dec. 3, that’s more mass shootings this year than there have been days this year. Today is only the 337th day of 2015.

Yeah, you read that right: 353 mass shootings in 337 days.

On Nov. 13, Gawain Rushane Wilson shot four people to death and injured a fifth in Jacksonville, Fla. You probably didn’t hear about that incident, because we were all focused on Paris. The same Robert Dear murdered three people and injured nine more in Colorado Springs, an unknown shooter killed two people and injured two more in Sacramento. Then Wednesday, the same day Syed Farook and Tashfeen Malik went on their rampage in San Bernardino, an unknown shooter killed one person and injured three in Savannah, Ga.

Enough. It has to stop.

And you know what else I have had enough of? I have had enough of the wild-eyed rhetoric and hyperbole, from both sides of the great divide, over gun control laws: Ban all the guns! Ban all the gun control laws!

ENOUGH!

Here’s the fact of the matter, people: We are wwwwwaaaaayyyyy past the point of being able to fix by changing laws. We have to change minds. We have to change hearts. We have to change our ways of thinking.

Don’t misunderstand me. I am not in favor of doing away with gun control laws, nor do I oppose the passage of new, common-sense gun control laws. I grew up in rural Southeast Texas. I have been around guns all my life. I am not a hunter, but most of the people in my family are. They own and use guns, and they manage to do so without going around shooting people who have pissed them off.

The same is true for the vast majority of gun owners in this world. And I don’t think the government at any level should be able to take their guns — or their ammunitions — away from them.

But at the same time, I sure as hell don’t think that everybody out there should be allowed to own a gun. There are people who are mentally unstable, people who have no training in using a gun, people who are reckless and careless and just plain mean. Folks like that shouldn’t be walking around armed with guns.

When it comes to semi-automatic assault rifles and armor-piercing bullets and other such weapons and ammunition — I really don’t see why any civilian needs that kind of weaponry. I just don’t. And I don’t see why someone wanting to buy a gun who doesn’t have ill intentions can’t fill out some extra paperwork and wait a day or two more to get that gun if that will help keep guns out of the hands of those who shouldn’t have them. That’s not banning guns; that’s just using some common sense. It’s been almost a month since the attacks on Paris, and investigations there continue. Investigations into Robert Dear’s rampage in Colorado Springs and the shootings yesterday in San Bernardino are just getting started. In each of these cases — and in the 351 other cases this year in the U.S. — the big question is always: Why?

Did Robert Dear shoot up Planned Parenthood because he had a personal beef with someone there, or because he is rabidly anti-abortion? Did Syed Farook and Tashfeen Malik shoot those people in San Bernardino because he got into an argument with a coworker, or are they DAESH sympathizers striking out against those they see as enemies of Islam?

Why? I can’t answer those questions. But at the same time, I can tell you why: Because somebody hated somebody, because somebody was mad at somebody, because somebody has no self-control and a way-over-developed sense of their own righteousness.

That’s what lies at the root of all of it. That’s what we have to change.

And we can’t legislate the hate away. We can’t outlaw anger.

It won’t be easy, people. And I am not saying I have the answer. What I am saying is that I have had enough. We have all had enough. We can’t take much more.

So we have to stop screaming at each other. Stop insisting that “My way is the only right way and if you don’t agree with me you’re wrong, and I’ll just kill you if you don’t agree.”

Stop with the hateful diatribes — on all sides of the debates. No more hyperbole. No more ultimatums. We have to start somewhere. Make that somewhere be with you, with each of us.

Tammye Nash is managing editor of Dallas Voice.
Put down the pitchforks and stop the infighting and let’s come together to support our gayborhood.

The recent attacks in the gayborhood have really scared me. But I’m not scared for myself or my own safety; I’m scared for the survival of gayborhood itself.

As these attacks have progressed over the last few months, I have worried about the impact they have not only on the members of my community but also on the businesses on The Strip.

The recent attacks have hurt individuals physically, I know. But I also know they have left a black mark on the Cedar Springs name — and that black mark must be erased.

Now more than ever, we need to flock to The Strip and support the businesses/bars/restaurants/retail stores there. We need to show them that we aren’t scared and that we support our own.

We need to lift each other up in this time of need.

I’m not suggesting that you put yourself in a dangerous situation or in a dark alley. But I do hope we will all show our support and stand in solidarity — with both our words and our pocketbooks.

I hope people in Dallas realize how special and unique having a “gayborhood” is. One definitely does not see something like this area in every city in the country. In fact, this area is one of the reasons I moved to Dallas.

The sense of community that just being in Oak Lawn makes me feel is unlike anything I felt growing up in the middle of Kansas. The gayborhood brings us together as a community and creates a special place for all of us to enjoy.

For many, the gayborhood is an outlet, “safe space” to go to with their spouses or boyfriends/girlfriends to shop and hang out and walk down the street holding hands without worrying about dirty looks or other repercussions. For others, it’s a place to go drink and dance and look for the love of their life.

What we have here in Dallas is special, and I hope you all know it. I hope you realize that how much time and money each of the businesses on our “Strip” have invested in our community. Now is the time we need to really patronize these businesses and show them that we are proud — proud of the time and effort and money they have put into giving us a great place to live, work and play.

We need to stop fighting amongst ourselves about the best ways to improve the gayborhood and make it a safer area. We need to put down the pitchforks and stop bickering and take the time to realize that, although we may not have the same methods for helping, we are all working for a common goal: keeping our gayborhood safe and thriving.

#SupportTheStrip

Chad Mantooth is the associate advertising manager for Dallas Voice and an Oak Lawn resident.
The man who invented Santa Claus

Out composer Mark Adamo, on the creation of a myth with his world premiere opera ‘Becoming Santa Claus’
t is the night before Thanksgiving, and Mark Adamo is running around Target, trying to gather the last bits of supplies for orphans’ dinner for 15 colleagues that he just found out he’s hosting. “I’m looking for a spring-form pan because I am making a cauliflower tart,” he says. “Most of us are from out of town, and given that it’s the worst travel day of the year, [we put together our own]. It’s kind of a lovely confluence of people. Holidays are what we make of them.”

Adamo’s real-life experience almost perfectly reflects the themes of his newest world, the world premiere opera Becoming Santa Claus, which opens Friday at the Winspear Opera House. Following on the heels of Everest and Great Scott, this is the third world premiere by the Dallas Opera this year alone, and the second not based on pre-existing material … unless you count that Bible and several hundred years of cultural myths. But the story is all Adamo:

Prince Claus is nearing his bar mitzvah (well, he’s about to turn 13), and his helicopter mom, Queen Sophie, has spent years planning his party … so obsessively, in fact, that she hasn’t taken into account that her elves are exhausted. And where has her husband, the King, been all this time? Claus’ uncles (the Magi) are supposed to show up, but they are summoned away — some message from the North Star over Bethlehem. Instead of their presence, and his father’s presence, Prince Claus is offered presents. Claus takes this as an opportunity to do something nice himself, by taking a sleigh-ful of elaborate toys to the little unnamed Israeli newborn.

Santa, mangers, elves, toy factories, wise men, tinsel … they all cross-pollinate in a story of redemption and family, and the true meaning of holidays. So how, exactly, did Adamo — the acclaimed opera composer (he also serves as his own librettist) responsible for Little Women, Lysistrata or The Nude Goddess and The Gospel of Mary Magdalen — stumble upon the idea to “create” Santa?

“Every opera I’ve ever done could be called Becoming something,” he ponders. “Little Women is about Jo becoming a woman, for instance. The exact process, though, he admits “was really quite random.” Christmas tradition doesn’t play a huge role in his life anymore. “Half the time I’m not home [during the holiday], and [my partner John Corigliano’s] father is Catholic, but his mother’s side is both Jewish and secular; I observe it from a greater distance, but not a hostile one. I think it’s more interesting to see how the rest of the culture enters the Christmas season. The show started out as such an idea thing — “let’s do something on Christmas” — and it ended up being such a personal show.”

The overriding theme that drove it? “The impossibility of being a perfect parent,” he says. “But I did not want to do something with a contemporary kid on the upper west side of Manhattan with two divorced parents. Precisely because there’s an opportunity to do this in a mythic fairy tale way, we can explore how objects aren’t feelings, they are symbols. They are what you send instead of being truly generous.”

The consumerism element Needled at him. “I was imagining Santa as a greedy brat obsessed with presents and wondered, how did he become that way?” Then I realized the first instance of gift-giving in [Western] tradition is the Magi — gold, frankincense, myrrh. And I thought about what it was like backstage at the nativity: Could the Santa Claus process be in the same place? I didn’t want to blend them — the real subject is secular Christmas, as that’s the ubiquitous one in society; the sacred is one you believe or your don’t.

But in terms of myth structures, it mirrors my last piece about Mary Magdalen: Looking at these frequently conflicting versions of the same thing,” and coming up with a synthesis. As beautiful as his music is, and as driven by glamour as spectacle as he can be, Adamo is clearly a thinking artist as much as a feeling one, someone who looks for cross-connections. Though suggesting it’s set 2,000 year ago, it’s also a fantasy piece, and simultaneously one that lives within the Zeitgeist of the contemporary world. Divorce, “daddy issues,” kids spoiled by fancy parties: It could very well be a thread on Keeping Up with the Kardashians. “We, are as Madonna tells us, living in the material world, and we don’t have the option of not living in it,” Adamo says.

That’s how Adamo came up with the idea for his piece, at least; bringing it to fruition in a world premiere is another story itself. Adamo says his process typically follows three stages. The first is “an essay to myself — what do I want to see? How would I want to address it,” he explains. Then he constructs two outlines: In the first is, he imagines the piece as a silent film or a dance, and wonders, “how could I describe it just by explaining the movement of the characters in space and the relationship?” “I don’t use any language — what they are doing, never what they are saying. You can trou-blesshoo a lot that way. It also gives you a sense of a motif structure because of actions that repeat,” he says. Then he does a second outline “as if I am listening to a CD in a language I don’t understand — still not getting the words, but listening to the vocal textures and contours. What is the contrast between characters in one world and another? By the time I do that, I have so much information without ever having written a word or a note, the first draft of the libretto is also the first draft of the score. You can always knock the corners off if it’s too square.” By that point, he says, the actual composition just flows, though there’s much left to do.

“I will frequently adjust once it gets to composition, but the way I try to avoid that is to outline the piece very carefully before starting. There are only three low notes in the show and I knew they would be at the end. You associate ideas or characteristics with sound. And then suddenly once and once only he’s at the lowest E-flat a tenor can hit, it means something. The controls of those contrasts are your strongest tools.”

Even with the outline, Adamo admits he hadn’t finished the score until about six weeks before rehearsal, “which is a little late contractually but not practically,” he laughs.

At that point, though, the opera is still just notes on a page, images in his head. Bringing a piece to life is the collaborative process that can go well or poorly. According to Adamo, the rehearsals for Becoming Santa Claus have amazed him at their fluidity.

“It has gone extremely well — it has gone better and easier than I imagined,” he says. “It’s strange — usually there’s a personal learning curve, but we all showed up and knew exactly what the piece was. The first reading just came off the page. This never happens! It’s unnerving, like a revival — I have never had to second-guess anyone in my entire artistic life. [Conductor] Emmanuel [Villaume] will make a suggestion and I’ll be thinking the exact same thing … before I ever get a chance to give my notes, everyone’s always on top of it.”

A world premiere has the benefit and burden of having no specific reputation to stand up to. “The singers are unencumbered by prior productions, but also unguided,” he says. “It really does feel as if they are creating these roles because they came out of nowhere but my little pointed head. They don’t have the shadow of other performers.”

For himself, Adamo feels Becoming Santa Claus has been a discovery for himself. “What has surprised me [listening to it come together] is the range of it — I just haven’t done anything quite this various before,” he says. “The family story is emotionally stark with a tender family dynamic, and then there’s this elf comic vocal ballet that is so surreal. Kevin Burdette is just doing splendidly well — very, very stylish. Then another character sings, and you feel like you’re in a different opera.”

Of course, as a gay man, Adamo likes a little spectacle with his message. “I love the idea that there’s this gala,” he says. “I wanted the whole elf quartet to be a glittering celebration of the season, even though it’s asking really serious questions. You should come out happy then see Nordstrom’s windows and do a double-take. The show has an ending that’s emotional true but also ambivalent. That’s exactly what I want.”
A chilling trend

As gay ski weeks become less common, the big ones gain in importance

ARNOLD WAYNE JONES | Executive Editor
jones@dallasvoice.com

2015 has been a year of change for the gay skiing community. OutBoard — which earlier this year marked its 20th event, specializing in snow-capped fun for gay snowboarders — has held its last party, as the organization shut down in May; Utah Gay Ski Week, which became part of the Elevation party, also seems to be no more. Lake Tahoe Winterfest made it to 19 years until organizers pulled the plug. And the Dallas-founded Telluride Gay Ski Week’s 11th incarnation appears to have been its last.

But that just means you need to plan more carefully to find the outdoory winter parties that appeal to you. (Of course, there are always non-gay-ski opportunities to hit the slopes, including Wolf Creek, pictured, Crested Butte, Vail and many more resort destinations.)

Here’s our 10th annual — and possibly final — rundown on the major North American gay ski weeks for 2016.

Aspen Gay & Lesbian Ski Week, Aspen, Colo. Jan. 17–24. Arriving a week later than last, the one that started it all — now in its 39th year — Aspen Gay Ski Week launches the season for snowosexuals. (It has been around so long, it claims the generic URL GaySkiWeek.com without even having to say where it is.) With its mountain du jour (Aspen, Snowmass, Highlands) and special events specifically for lesbian skiers, the week-long celebration includes hot tub parties, dinners, a hospitality suite, movie screenings and more. GaySkiWeek.com.

Winter Rendezvous XXXII, Stowe, Vt. Jan. 20–24. The East Coast’s first (and biggest) gay ski party is this five-day free-for-all, targeted at skiers and non-skiers alike, with events such as comedian Sandra Bernhard, daily après ski parties, sleigh rides at the Von Trapp Family Lodge (they of The Sound of Music) and even a giant pool extravaganza and ice carving contest. WinterRendezvous.com.

Whistler Pride and Ski Festival, Whistler, British Columbia, Canada. Jan. 23–31. Previously named WinterPride, this 24th outing is probably the Great White North’s premiere ski week, welcoming 3,000 guest from 26 nations partaking of 65 events across eight days. From entertainers like Margaret Cho and DJs Abel and Seth Cooper to the closing night Snowball, passes can be tailored for both men and women traveling to Canada’s wintry resort. GayWhistler.com.

Elevation: Mammoth, Mammoth Lakes, Calif. March. The 14th annual Mammoth Lake snow party is still on the books, though as of press time, the precise dates and events haven’t been announced (it usually takes place in mid-March, however). As before, they expect 2,500 skiers and snowboarders, so check their website for details. MammothGaySki.com.

Wolf Creek Ski Area in Colorado opened its slopes for skiing last week. The resort doesn’t have a formal gay ski week, but then again, many have closed down in the last year. (Photo courtesy Jason Lombard)
Drive-by tasting

One visit. One meal. One chance to get things right: Old Chicago Pizza

ARNOLD WAYNE JONES
Executive Editor
jones@dallasvoice.com

Old Chicago Pizza and Taproom

Old Chicago Pizza and Taproom has been located on the corner of the Mockingbird Station development for a while now, but for some reason, tucked away as it is on the opposite end of the Angelika Film Center, I never seem to make it all the way down there for a bite. (I'm usually distracted by a beer at Trinity Hall or a cocktail at People's Last Stand.) But I was in a pizza mood recently, and decided to make stopping by a priority. It was time to put Old Chicago through the drive-by tasting test.

The test is fairly simple: I pick a restaurant, eat there for lunch only, and go by myself. I try to spend under $15, and I only go once. In other words: I eat the way most people do when having lunch — inexpensively, quickly and without gorging themselves. And I ask the question: Would I go back there myself on my own dime?

When it comes to Old Chicago, that ended up being a harder question to answer than I imagined.

The style of the restaurant is more pub than grub, with a large central bar, lots of stools to watch the many TVs broadcasting sports and a few booths lining the walls. Sports bars can be fun places to eat, especially alone — they have energy and distractions, and you can feel like you're part of something bigger rather than just clocking out your lunch hour solo.

My trip there, though, was less than social. It wasn’t very crowded, although the staff was incredibly friendly. The hostess even took the time to explain to me the lunch specials before I took a seat, going so far as to tell me the prices after taxes depending on what I ordered. Score points for efficiency and cost.

But that positive was marred by the service. The lunch special — $7.99 for a personal pizza and unlimited salad — feels like a less attractive offer when the "unlimited" salad never begins. I waited fully 10 minutes after ordering for it to arrive … which came well after the pizza. The person who delivered the pie didn’t seem to notice that there was no salad to accompany it, and didn’t seem especially curious about it (no offer to check on it for me). I finally hailed down my waitress and she returned with a delicious Caesar: The dressing was flavorful though not too specially tart, shaved Parmesan was visible throughout and the croutons were crisp. It was so good, in fact, I ordered a second round.

That capped off a fully enjoyable Chicago-style deep dish pizza. (When I think of individual slices, I think of New York-style; when I think of personal pizza, I think of Chicago.) The kitchen actually offers two styles of crust here, although both lean towards the yeasty, thick kind. And if you’re in the mood for that, it can be quite tasty. The breading was not heavy, but fluffy and honeycombed with air. The cheese was thick and gooey, the tomato sauce lightly seasoned but fresh. I got it with Italian sausage (about three globules per piece) as well as sliced black olives — one of my favorite pizza toppings, although these were slightly desiccated and less juicy than I prefer. Overall, though, a nice pie, filling and enjoyable. I liked my lunch and thought, “I’ll be
Rebel heart

It’s been 60 years since James Dean’s death, but the legend lives on Markie Winslow Jr. adored his cousin, Jimmie. A few years older, Jimmie played with Markie and took him on motorcycle rides, but they never went too fast. With Markie, Jimmie wasn’t reckless, though he pushed the limits of it on his own. People in their hometown of Fairmount, Ind., didn’t care; they loved Jimmie — James Dean — because he was a local boy who’d done well.

No one was surprised that Dean ended up in Hollywood or that he became a star: he’d always loved to act. He’d entered and won contests, performed in church plays and had eschewed prelaw classes in favor of a coveted spot in a UCLA production of Macbeth. It was obvious where his career path was taking him.

And it took him there quickly. In just a short time, Dean was a heartbeat movie star, had performed on the new medium of television, and had gained a fiancé and enough money to indulge in the hobby of auto racing. When a guy signed movie deals for six figures, $7,000 wasn’t much for a car and he had his eye on a Porsche 550 Spyder, one of just a few made. He’d almost gotten arrested just looking at the car one night. What else could he do but buy it?

Overjoyed with his prize, he’d started to break the car in but some doubted that it was a good purchase. Others told Dean to be careful in that car, that it was dangerous, that it could kill him, that it would kill him.

And on September 30, 1955 (fully 60 years ago now!), it did.

Though its subtitle indicates a small focus of subject matter, Too Fast to Live, Too Young to Die is more comprehensive and expansive than merely a few hours. That has plusses and minuses.

A little background is always a good thing, especially when you’re reading about a star who made only three movies and died six decades ago. Keith Elliot Greenberg finesses that backstory — including Dean’s childhood, his rumored bisexuality, his odd on-set genius and his rapscallion attitude — but Greenberg unfortunately combines it with fan-gushing from folks who traveled to Fairmount to partake in a James Dean festival. That’s charming at first but it becomes florid, and quite overdone.

Still, if you’re a fan and can ignore that, you’ll appreciate this book and its marking of a sad anniversary. If you own the iconic poster or t-shirt and want to know more, you’ll find that here, too. In either case, Too Fast to Live, Too Young to Die may be just the ticket.

— Terri Schlichenmeyer

have a wide variety of good (and especially local craft) beers. The Texas beers at Old Chicago are present, though not dominant. But with Peticolas’ Velvet Hammer, the Lakewood Temptress and Rahr for the offering, it’s hard to say they don’t know the local market. They even offer craft flights — four 4-ounce glasses for about five dollars — where you can sample any of the local brews. The only question becomes, once you order them, will they arrive before it’s time for happy hour?

Such is the conundrum of the restaurant lunch recommendation: Friendly staff, pleasant enough atmosphere, uncrowded environment, tasty food, good price. But that bugaboo service can do you in every time.
The anti-Prius

Toyota's Camry Hybrid packs all the green cred of Honda's enviro-friendly icon into a package totally lacking in smug.
One of the funniest episodes ever of South Park is where they’re making fun of the supposed arrogance of Prius owners. There’s a “smug cloud” threatening the town because of the smuggy enviro-friendly hybridists. It’s not like Prius owners can hide, either — their cars’ shape is as iconic as a VW Beetle’s, copied widely to demonstrate green cred. I mock, because I like the Prius. But what if there was a hybrid from Toyota that’s as stealthy as a peanut in a Pay Day factory? It’s called the Camry Hybrid — the Prius for un-Prius people.

Toyota gets credit for making this generation the sportiest Camry ever, but that’s like picking spots upon vanilla beans. It should be mentioned that hasn’t kept it from top of the sales charts since for, well, nearly forever.

At least in hybrid trim, stylists made an effort. They added creases and gaping air inlets to the facia, fit 17-in. alloy wheels with granite finish under the smooth body, glitzed up the front with projector-beam headlamps and padded the rear with a color-keyed spoiler and chrome exhaust tip. None of that will cause a stir at your local “cars and coffee.”

Nor will the interior, although the flowing stitched dash covering and premium materials may make hot rodders envious — as will the sporty seats with silver leatherette, cloth trim and heated cushions. A leather-wrapped steering wheel, dual-zone automatic climate control, back up camera and remote starting might also. Check the two 12v outlets, deep cupholders, USB port and wireless phone charger in the console. The Entune Premium Audio system with navigation includes a 7-in. touchscreen, Bluetooth calling/audio streaming, voice recognition and an array of apps for restaurants, movies and radio.

All nice, but if you’re expecting 50-MPG, you’re gonna need more smug. At 40/38-MPG city/hwy (40-MPG combined), Camry Hybrid doesn’t even match the Ford Fusion Hybrid’s 44/41-MPG nor the all-new 2016 Chevy Malibu Hybrid’s expected 48/45-MPG. Still, it’s a smooth operator that works its magic without theatrics.

The gasoline portion of this parade is represented by a 2.5-liter four-cylinder engine that delivers 156 horsepower and 156 lb.-ft. of torque to the front wheels through a continuously-variable automatic transmission. That would warrant praying without the electric motor’s 104 kW output, tallying up 200 horsepower for the combined powertrain. That won’t cause hooves to thunder, but it’s enough. This Camry’s mission is gas mileage, not winning NASCAR races.

In that vein, Camry Hybrid has some fancy tricks. Regenerative brakes recapture energy during deceleration as in other hybrids, but Camry also has a mode that optimizes throttle and climate control to maximize fuel economy. Press the EV mode button to travel up to 1.6 miles at low speed (very low, like 25 mph).

If you’re looking for an efficient hybrid that blows the imaginary Prius smug cloud out of town, the Camry Hybrid has much to offer. It’s roomy, comfortable, quiet, well-equipped and loaded with technology. Just don’t expect to get noticed. For that, you’ll need the all-new 2017 Prius.

While Camry starts at $23,070, and Camry Hybrid rises from $26,790, our test car came to $32,233.

2015 Hyundai Sonata

Extremely comfortable with our orientation.

Call for a test drive! 1.888.80.HYUNDAI | www.VanHundai.com | 1301 South I-35 East | Carrollton

The Hyundai Specialist & General Sales Manager
Jakob Waldbusser
Call Jakob today: 888.804.9863

Hyundai values inclusion and diversity! Van Hyundai understands our community!
CRISP, REFRESHING TASTE.
Iconic TV movie ‘Rudolph’ becomes a very familiar family stage musical

You know Dasher and Dancer and Prancer and Vixen ... heck, you know the entire cast of Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer, the TV perennial brought to life in charming stop-motion animation more than 50 years ago. But do you recall that Dallas got a chance to see the most famous reindeer of all ... live? As with last year, the stage adaptation of the tuneful morality play (complete with the familiar songs and even the familiar style of the cut-out classic) comes to the stage of the Majestic for three more performances.

DEETS: The Majestic Theatre, 1925 Elm St. Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday–Sunday at 2 p.m. TicketDFW.com.

Modern Christmas classic ‘Elf’ takes flight at Fair Park as a musical

You can tell it’s Christmas when the holiday shows turn out in force, especially when a classic from one medium comes to the stage. One of the more recent is the musical adaptation of the Will Ferrell film comedy Elf, about a human adopted by Santa Claus who eventually returns to the big city. With a score by Matthew Sklar and Chad Beguelin, and a script from the authors of The Drowsy Chaperone and The Producers.

Just because Santa comes once a year, doesn’t mean you have to!

ARTSWEEK

THEATER

The Beulaville Baptist Book Club Presents: A Bur-

Miracle on 34th Street. Janelle Lutz, the reigning star of North Texas stages, returns in Dallas Children’s Theatre’s adaptation of the warm holiday classic, with Francis Fuselier as Kris. Rosewood Center for Family Arts, 5938 Skillman St. Through Dec. 20. $15–$28. DCT.org.

OPERA

Becoming Santa Claus. World premiere holiday family

SODOMA’S RED LIGHTS PARTY SAT. DECEMBER 5TH COME DANCE THE NIGHT AWAY OR PLAY GAMES OF MISCHIEF & DEBAUCHERY 11:00 PM UNTIL......

DALLAS ORIGINAL BLACKOUT PARTY SAT. DECEMBER 12TH 11PM-4AM FLASH LIGHTS PROVIDED.

GLOW PARTY SAT. DECEMBER 19TH WET UNDERWEAR CONTEST. CASH PRIZES FOR FIRST & SECOND PLACE - MUST REGISTER ON THE DATE OF THE EVENT CONTEST STARTS AT 3AM SUNDAY MORNING. UNDERWEAR WILL BE PROVIDED.

MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED IN ALL SPECIALS Discount memberships available:
6 month = $20 · 1 year = $35
2509 PACIFIC AVE DALLAS 75226 · 214.821.8989 MIDTOWNE.COM

POLLOCK UNVEILED | The DMA features a new exhibition that shows a side of Jackson Pollock beyond his iconic drip paintings.

opera from composer-librettist Mark Adamo. A spoiled prince learns the meaning of giving ... and creates a legend. Winspear Opera House, 2403 Flora St. Dec. 4–12. DallasOpera.org.

PERFORMANCE

FINE ART

Jackson Pollock: Blind Spots. An exclusive exhibit of the innovative American painter’s late work, a departure from his classic “drip” paintings, but also showing the span of the artist’s work. Dallas Museum of Art, 1717 Harwood St. Through March 20. Special exhibit fee. DMA.org.

N.S. Harsha: Sprouts, reach in to reach out. A site-specific mural, the first in Dallas for the Indian artist, transforms the main corridor of the DMA. Dallas Museum of Art, 1717 Harwood St. Through Feb. 21. DMA.org.

SATURDAY 12.05

SPORTS

FrontRunners. Gay jogging group meets at 8:30 a.m. at the statue in Lee Park for a run along the Katy Trail.

SUNDAY 12.06

WORSHIP

Dignity (LGBT Catholics). Worship the first Sunday of each month, led by ministers Cliff and Jon Garinn. Interfaith Peace Chapel (lower level), 5910 Cedar Springs Road. 6 p.m.
TUeSDAy 12.08
FILM
In Cold Blood. Richard Brooks’ gripping film adaptation of Truman Capote’s revolutionary “true novel” about spree killers and the aftermath of their crimes. Screens as part of the Tuesday Big Movie New Classic Series at Landmark’s Magnolia Theatre in the West Village, 3699 McKinney Ave. Sponsored by Dallas Voice. Screens at 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

THEATER

THURSDAy 12.10
THEATER

FRiDAy 12.11
CABARET
Mistletoe Magic: A Christmas Cabaret. The Bruce Wood Dance Company continues to grow with the opening of the Bruce Wood Dance Theater in the Design District to host the company’s second fundraiser and gala, a two-night-only cabaret featuring Broadway star Liz Callaway, performances by Hugh Panaro and Joseph Thalken plus dances from the company members, all served over a dinner prepared by chef Abraham Salum. Attendees support the upcoming season of BWDP and are acknowledged in the program next season. RSVP by Dec. 9 (each evening limited to 130 guests). Bruce Wood Dance Theater, 101-103 Howell St. Dec. 11 and 12 at 7 p.m. BruceWoodDance.org.

STUNNING CABARET | Bruce Wood Dance holds a two-night cabaret and fundraiser, featuring dance, music from Broadway stars and a feast prepared by Abraham Salum on Dec. 11 and 12.

Gym SALE!
Buy 6-month or 1-year gym membership and receive an Extra Month FREE!*
Ask Howard

How to do the wrong thing right

Dear Howard,

My boyfriend wants me to take him to New York over Christmas, see the tree at Rockefeller Center, all the holiday storefront windows along Fifth Avenue, the fabulous shopping and whatnot, etc. But I keep telling him we just can’t afford it; my genius boyfriend says all we have to do is bring a bushel of fresh mistletoe (it’s literally dripping from the branches of our backyard oak tree) and just sell the stuff on a street corner in little baggies while dressed in Santa caps. He claims we could make a fortune in just a few hours, or at least enough to afford a Manhattan hotel room for a few days. Is that crazy? — Bud

Dear Buddy,

Pack your bags and winterwear: Your boyfriend is a genius! Bring two bushels of mistletoe, in fact, if you really have that much and can transport it. You’ll sell out before sundown. Bud, do you know how much the Madison Avenue florist shops charge for a piece of fresh mistletoe no larger than a sprig of parsley? Try about $25 and upwards … as a starting point.

Dear Howard,

I’m a recent widower, 44, no children, and consider myself straight. A beautiful divorcee lives next door to me here in Frisco. She has a 19-year-old son, a super-nice kid, who has a habit of always walking around shirtless, even in winter; well, yesterday while planting some spring bulbs in his mom’s front yard, he waved at me as I pulled out of my garage, motioned I roll my car window down, then galloped over dripping sweat and grinned, “I’m totally free for dinner next Saturday, sir.” I was stunned, I didn’t know how to reply, so I just sort of stammered, “OK,” and then nearly backed over my mailbox as he shouted, “I’ll be over Saturday at 7… don’t cook, we’ll order in … and I’ll bring the condoms!” Hell’s bells, man, but what should I do? — Robert

Dear Bob,

What do you mean, “What?” should you do? You’re to, by goodness, have sex with this young torso-exposing, ripped whippersnapper, that’s what you do. You do remember how to have sex, don’t you? An erection works exactly the same in bed with men as with women, if you were wondering.

Are you fretful about possibly hurting the feelings of this 19-year-old shirtless stud’s attractive mother — whom you’re clearly not interested in dating (translation: effing)? You would have by now asked her out already if you had a genuine interest, as opposed to her handsome grown son having asked you out, instead; or, are you simply worried that you don’t have enough Viagra remaining in your old prescription bottle to happily satisfy all night long a sexually legal, teenaged piece of beefcake gay boy?

Dear Howard,

Is it fly to ask a beastiality question, one that’s just completely off-limits-twisted — in so far as it stands a prayer of ever being printed in the paper, at all; specifically, about “K-9” sex—assuming you even know what that is? — Marko

Dear Numb Nuts Dum Dum,

The only questions I draw “completely off-limits-twisted” to answering, ever, are pedophilia queries. As for bestiality—often misspelled as beastility, as you did — it’s far more common a private-life sexual activity than your, say, average Christian church-goer lets on; thus, I’m wide-open to answer just whatever you toss my way, slick; nonetheless, for future reference, you do need (despite your understandable embarrassment at engaging in sexual intercourse with household pets) to actually remember to ask me what is this beastially-twisted “K-9” sex” question that you wish I had enough sense of what’s freakishly twisted to even know how to answer.

If you bungle raising your children, nothing else much matters in life.

Dear Howard,

My ex asked to join me for Christmas this year, a Friday; he doesn’t have visitation rights with our kids that weekend, but they both want Tim be there with me on Christmas morning, just like the family we used to be. Help? — Andy

Dear Andrew,

Each of you, both yourself and Tim, need to learn to love your children more than you loathe your ex-spouse. Jackie Kennedy said it best: “If you bungle raising your children, nothing else much matters in life.”

L+S scoop

A Couple of guys*

“A Stand-Up Guy”

e-mail: a.coupleofguys@gymdude.com

I’M A GUY! CUTTING’ VER HAIR SHORT AN’ DRESSIN’ LIKE A GUY DOESN’T MAKE YOU A GUY.

IT’S WHATS BETWEEN VER LEGS THAT COUNTS. AN’ I DON’T WANT NO WOMEN IN HERE CHECKIN’ OUT WHATS BETWEEN MINE.

WHAAAT? HER OBVIOUSLY A GIRL… AN’ THIS IS THE MEN’S ROOM.

Yeah, don’tcha HATE that?

©2015 Dave Grossman

For a more complete Community Calendar online, visit Tinyurl.com/dvevents.

To submit an item for inclusion in the Community Calendar, visit Tinyurl.com/dvsubmit.

Dear Howard,

My ex asked to join me for Christmas this year, a Friday; he doesn’t have visitation rights with our kids that weekend, but they both want Tim be there with me on Christmas morning, just like the family we used to be. Help? — Andy

Dear Andrew,

Each of you, both yourself and Tim, need to learn to love your children more than you loathe your ex-spouse. Jackie Kennedy said it best: “If you bungle raising your children, nothing else much matters in life.”
Making the SCENE the week of Dec. 4–10:

- Alexandre’s: Girls Night Out with Peggy Honea on Friday. Gary Poe at 5 p.m. and La Pompe at 10 p.m. on Saturday. Chris Chism on Wednesday. Alicia Silex on Thursday.
- Brick/Joey’s: Hunter Vance from 6-9 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. Silent auction, naughty and nice dancers, prizes drawings all night to benefit Bryan’s House on Saturday.
- Cedar Springs Tap House: Dallas Red Foundation awards and check presentation from 6-8 p.m. on Friday.
- Changes: Fort Worth Treehouse meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday.
- Club Reflection: Cowtown Leathermen annual Christmas Party at 5 p.m. on Saturday. Texas Gay Rodeo Association meeting at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Cowtown Leathermen cookout at 4 p.m. on Sunday. TGRA Toys for tots show at 7 p.m. on Sunday. Imperial Court and Cowtown Leathermen game night at 7 p.m. on Wednesday.
- Dallas Eagle: Ladies of Leather and Lace fundraising show for Greg Dollgener Memorial AIDS Fund and CURE at 8 p.m. on Friday. Women in Leather social night on Friday. Texas Gay Rodeo Association presents Hard Candy Christmas from 7-10 p.m. on Saturday. Dallas Bears and Leather Knights club night at 9 p.m. on Saturday. Dallas Girls of Leather monthly meeting at 5 p.m. on Sunday. Trivia Night with Mama Payne at 8 p.m. on Thursday.
- JR’s Bar & Grill: Cassie’s Holiday Hoedown benefits the Secret Santa Project at Sam Houston Elementary School on Monday.
- Rainbow Lounge: Illusions of Rainbow Lounge features Donna Summer and Grace Jones at 9 p.m. on Saturday.
- Round-Up Saloon: Lost Souls Rugby Toy Drive and Tacky Sweater Contest benefits The Family Place from 6-9 p.m. on Thursday.
- Sue Ellen’s: Burlesque Panty Raid on Friday. Coles Whalen on Saturday. Kathy & Bella at 3 p.m. and Barefoot Hippies at 6 p.m. on Sunday.
- The Rose Room: Miss Fire and Ice USofA on Sunday.

To view more Scene photos, go to DallasVoice.com/category/photos. Scene Photographer: Chad Mantooth.
Andrew and Daniel at TMC: The Mining Co.

Show Yourself: Photos submitted by our readers

THIS WEEK’S WINNER: Jorge and friends on The Strip

Amber, Stephanie and Leah

Ronni at The Round-Up Saloon

Zack

Win Cash!

Send us your pictures, selfies or photos for a chance for you and your friends to appear in the Dallas Voice Scene pages.

One photo will be selected each week to win a $25 Visa gift card!

Send us your pictures to:

@dallasvoice  http://tinyurl.com/pa8my4j  @Dallasvoice

dallasvoice

The Premier Media Source for LGBT Texas
LIFE+STYLE
scene

Slingin’ the drinks at S4

Hot dancer at TMC: The Mining Co.

Chase at BJ’s

Kyle and Kevin'
As the county celebrated the annual Day of Giving, a group of RuPaul’s Drag Race alums came together with other Dallas performers to help a friend. Jaidynn Dior Fierce, Jasmine Masters, Latrice Royale, Mrs. Kasha Davis and Shangela LaQuifa Wadley from the hit reality show were among the 15 performers in the show at The Brick to raise money to help Dallasite and Drag Race alum Kennedy Davenport save her family home.

Online efforts have already brought in more than half of the $30,000-plus Kennedy needs, and the benefit show added about $4,000 to the pot. The GoFundMe campaign continues at GoFundMe.com/dv848hy4.

Redhead and friend

Danny and John at JR.’s
OPEN SUNDAY 2-4

Gorgeous Vintage Home in beautiful original Elmwood 1118 Elmwood Blvd. $346,500
3 Bedrooms, 2 Baths, Pool, 1,757 sq.ft.

Brought to you by:
Debbie Sutton & Gary Bilpuch
For more information visit SRealty.biz or call 214.522.5232

Sundunes Florida Beach Condo

Ready for a Florida beach...
VACATION
Navarre Beach (Pensacola Beach)

Book your Florida beach vacation today!
This gay owned, beach front unit is available through Navarre Beach Agency with special rates. Visit our website navarrebeachagency.com
Call 850-939-2020 and tell them Leo sent you.
AIDS Arms, Inc.
is looking for a Compliance Officer. Candidate should have a Master’s degree. Interested candidates should complete on online application at https://aidsarms.com/companycareersite.com

AIDS Arms, Inc.
is seeking a Medical Assistant (MA) with clinical experience. Candidates must have Hepatitis B vaccination prior to hire date. Interested candidates should complete an online application at https://aidsarms.com/companycareersite.com

Now Hiring!

Want to work for the best LGBT nightclub in the country? Entry-level positions in the fast-paced nightclub/service industry are now available. Join an industry leader that offers top-notch benefits & growth potential. Thursday through Sunday nights are required.

Apply at 3911 Cedar Springs Rd. or visit Caven.com or partyattheblock.com

Advertising rates starting as low as $27 per week
214-754-8710 ext.110

Dallas Voice Classifieds

AIDS Services of Dallas
Pan Time Personal Care Aide Needed. Aide will provide assistance with daily living, nutrition, hygiene, and support for non-profit organization. Weekends Required. NO PHONE CALLS PLEASE. SEND RESUME sdelgado@aidsdallas.org

Help Wanted | All positions
Midtowne Spa Dallas
Apply in person at 2509 Pacific Ave.
No phone calls please
www.midtowne.com

THE PAINTER

SPECIALIZING IN INTERIOR PAINTING
25 YEARS EXPERIENCE FREE ESTIMATES EXTREMELY Meticulous

Tony R.
972-754-1536

Tonyrthepainter@netscape.com

DallasVoice.com
OUTnx.com
DigitalSeltzer.com

MOVING?
NEED MOVING BOXES?

Tree Hugger Boxes
Provides Inexpensive, Gently Used Quality Boxes and Eco-Friendly Moving Supplies.
Save 50 to 75%!! Delivery Available

2279 Vantage St, Dallas 75207
605 S. Sherman St, Ste 605 | Richardson 75081
www.TreeHuggerBoxes.com • 214-384-1316
Need a little help to get through your day?
Check out the Dallas Voice Massage and Personal Care Classified Ads.
Co-Dependents Anonymous (CoDA) is a Twelve Step Fellowship of men and women whose common purpose is recovery from codependence and the development and maintenance of healthy relationships. CoDA meetings in the area meet: •St. Thomas Episcopal Church 6525 Inwood Road (Inwood at Mockingbird) Dallas, Texas 75209 •LAMBDA GROUP 6:30 PM, Friday; 1 hour OAK LAWN CoDA GROUP 7:30 PM, Wed; 1 1/2 hours Meeting Type: Open, Sharing, Steps, Welcoming to all, Safe for GLBT

FIND REAL GAY MEN NEAR YOU
1-888-MegaMates
FREE TO LISTEN AND REPLY TO ADS Free Code: Dallas Voice
Ft. Worth: (817) 282-2500 www.megamates.com 18+

FIND REAL GAY MEN NEAR YOU
(214) 615-0100
Ft. Worth: (817) 282-2500
www.megamates.com 18+

POKER
Freeroll Poker Tournaments
In the gayborhood
British Beverage Company
Mondays
Game Starts at 7:30
Nightly Prizes & Gift Cards
For More info go to: pocketrocketsdallas.com

Join us for Catholic Mass for the LGBT community
First Sunday of each Month
Dignity Dallas Mass held at
CATHEDRAL OF HOPE
Interfaith Peace Chapel, Lower Level
dignitydallas@hotmail.com
972-729-9572 www.dignitydallas.net

Pegasus Squares, an LGBT Square Dance Club, meets every Sunday from 2:30pm-4:30pm at the Dallas School of Burlesque, 2924 Main St. Dallas. Beginner lessons start in October. Contact Rob Miller at 682-238-3442 for more info. or visit pegasus-squares.com.

Volunteer Needed!!
Be part of an exciting team and make a difference in someone’s life. Volunteers will be trained to conduct HIV outreach in the GLBT community working along side of trained Risk Reduction Specialists. For more information contact Sonny Blake @ 214-522-8600 Ext. 236

Solution on page 35
Modern Family Man

Across
1 Michelangelo’s David, once 5 Supporters in the bedroom
10 Mistake for Paul Taylor 15 Vietnam capital
16 Tow job 17 Barrie’s getting on in years
18 “Ready ___ here I come!” 19 Line portrayer in The Mod Squad
20 Start of a tweet to Reid Ewing of Modern Family
23 Gomer, to city slickers
24 Accessory for Wonder Woman
25 Composer Lee
28 Big manager on campus
30 End of the tweet
34 Came upon
37 First name in detective stories
38 Discharge on one’s face
39 Hang one’s head
40 Data transmission letters
41 Ewing’s response to the tweet
44 With blood rushing to the head
45 Able to bend over
48 Ancient Mexican
51 Ewing has openly shared about this condition
56 Pass out
57 Make up
58 Funny Dick
60 Web surfer
61 Goes lickety split
62 Final Foursome org.
63 “Not that I loved Caesar ___...”
64 Metal waste
65 Pack down

Down
1 Cruising area
2 Lance of An American Family
3 Weight loss product
4 The children’s hour to turn in
5 Avoided stirring Bond’s martini
6 Porn director Chi Chi
7 Bit of history
8 Screwdriver, e.g.
9 Is in session
10 Condom used at Southern Cal?
11 Disney Uncle
12 Boost from a successful cross-dresser?
13 ___ Novo (Benin’s capital)
14 A fireman goes down on it
15 Vietnam capital
16 Tow job
17 Barrie’s getting on in years
18 “Ready ___ here I come!”
19 Line portrayer in The Mod Squad
20 Start of a tweet to Reid Ewing of Modern Family
23 Gomer, to city slickers
24 Accessory for Wonder Woman
25 Composer Lee
28 Big manager on campus
30 End of the tweet
34 Came upon
37 First name in detective stories
38 Discharge on one’s face
39 Hang one’s head
40 Data transmission letters
41 Ewing’s response to the tweet
44 With blood rushing to the head
45 Able to bend over
48 Ancient Mexican
51 Ewing has openly shared about this condition
56 Pass out
57 Make up
58 Funny Dick
60 Web surfer
61 Goes lickety split
62 Final Foursome org.
63 “Not that I loved Caesar ___...”
64 Metal waste
65 Pack down

27 “___ never fly!”
28 Laura of Recount
29 Showboat’s “Nobody ___ But Me”
31 Bono’s band, written out
32 Get juice from a fruit
33 Airline to Oslo
34 Oliver Twist request
35 Gone With the Wind was one
36 Big top, e.g.
39 Shakespeare’s Antonio of Venice
41 Steamed up
42 Lincoln’s Johnson
43 Earhart and others
45 Former American Idol judge Paula
46 Poke the backsie
47 Screws around
48 Big name in gas
49 Some basketball defenses
50 Head lock?
52 Play area
53 It may come before 69
54 Foe of Pizarro
55 Sandler of I Now Pronounce You Chuck and Larry
59 Toto outburst
PERSON OF THE YEAR 2015

COMING
Friday, December 11
AD space Deadline
Monday, Dec 7

Contact Us TODAY!
214.754.8710

advertising@dallasvoice.com • dallasvoice.com
1825 Market Center Blvd. Suite 240 Dallas, Texas 75027